this book examines the military characteristics and potential of artificial intelligence ai in the new global revolution in military affairs offering an original perspective on the utilization imagination and politics of ai in the context of military development and weapons regulation the work provides a comprehensive response to the question of how we might reflect on the ai revolution in warfare and what can be said about the ways in which this has been handled in the first part of the book ai is accommodated both theoretically and empirically in the strategic context of the revolution in military affairs rma the book offers a novel understanding of autonomous weapons as multi layered composite systems pointing to a complex non linear interplay between evolutionary and revolutionary dynamics in the second section the book provides an impartial analysis of the related politics and operations of power whereby increases in military budgets and r d of the great powers are met and countered by advocacy networks and scientists campaigning for a ban on lethal autonomous weapons as such it moves beyond popular caricatures of killer robots and points out some of the problems which result from over reliance on such imagery this book will be of much interest to students of strategic studies critical security studies arms control and disarmament science and technology studies and general international relations narratives provide the storylines of conflict and in doing so become an arena of conflict themselves when states mount information campaigns against each other they are trying to change the narrative the digital platforms of the new information environment have been identified by various analysts as a significant factor in contemporary strategy and crisis management but while social media is noisier and more chaotic than traditional media and unprecedented in its immediacy and accessibility has it thus far been a game changer in strategic affairs in this adelphi book sir lawrence freedman and heather williams examine the impact of state led digital information or disinformation campaigns in four contexts the india pakistan crisis over kashmir in 2019 the heightened tensions between the united states and iran following the assassination of qasem soleimani in 2020 china s messaging in response to the covid 19 pandemic from 2020 22 and the russia ukraine crisis from 2013 23 while noting the meaningful consequences of digital information campaigns in each case the authors call for a sense of perspective such campaigns are only one aspect of wider political struggles they are also difficult for their initiators to control and less likely to influence foreign audiences than domestic ones overall the authors argue there is little evidence so far to suggest such campaigns will have as much influence over contemporary crises as the classical instruments of military and economic power
